

To whom it may concern:

It is bad enough that the FCC over regulates public radio and shuns radio geniuses like Howard Stern. It is bad enough that the FCC makes one hypocritical move after another against the DJ who brings laughter to so many people's miserable lives. However, now you want to take away our weather and traffic from our paid radio? In what way does it affect the FCC if I have this information? This can only be used for safety and needed reasons. I suggest for once that the FCC backs off of the radio that I now PAY for as I pay to hear my weather and traffic reports. There are many other problems in the world right now that should be concerning the FCC and this is definitely NOT one of them. So much radio has been wrecked by the FCC already.....don't ruin more. I pay for this radio, so I'd appreciate the FCC staying away from it. The number 1 reason I got into satellite radio was so the FCC could no longer control what I can and can't listen to. I now pay for music, news, weather, and traffic. These are things I should be able to get for free. However, I choose and pay to get them now and feel it is none of the FCC's business to interfere with services I pay my hard earned money to listen to. I appreciate any consideration in the matter. Thank you!

Howie S Jastrow